

Localism - like much of the public I don't believe the the public good or the long term interests of the United States are being well served by the current media structure. While the large media conglomerates and their dedicated, hard working employees are to be congratulated for their success we should remember that their success doesn't necessarily provide the ingrediants for a successful democracy.

The FCC creates the regulatory environment for business but more importantly for the long term health of our society. I believe the current regulations are not serving the public and rules must be changed to create a more competitive, local media structure.

Thanks,
John Arndt
San Anselmo, Ca